When the name of George Rider was called
there was silence in the room. He was tee of the association appointed to consider the subject adopted the following report:

To the Citizens' Association of the City of Sacramento: Your Committee on Nomination beg leave to report that, inasmuch as both the Republicant and Democratic City Central Committees have placed in the field a full ticket of good and representative critizens, therefore your committee recommend that the Citizens' Association take no action in the premises further than to express a wish that each and every member of the association vote for the candidate or candidates from his ward who is, in his judgment, best qualified and fitted for the position, irrespective of party prejudices. Respective of the candidates to be voted for to-day are reterred to, and that they were shortly after joined by officer Woods; that in the course of their conversation Woods and Rider called one another pet names, such as "stiff," "sneak," etc., and that Rider wound up by saying he did not give a —— for the entire police force. This last remark was too much for Mr. Fragge. It was the straw that broke for Mr. Frazee. It was the straw that broke the camel's back, and laying his official paw on the shoulder of Mr. Rider he pulled him for disturbing the peace of Chinatown. Of-ficer Woods also made a statement of the facts, which was about as related by Frazee. Mr. Jones, counsel for Mr. Rider, said he had no evidence to offer, but asked that the charges be dismissed.

Judge Henry, looking officer Frazee straight in the eye, said: "A policeman should have a character above reproach, a soul full of patience and a skin like an alligator," He ordered the prisoner discharged, remarking there was nothing to warrant the arrest and no evidence to sustain the charges, and it was not a proper matter to bring be-fore the Court, and intimating he thought the arresting officer should know better than to prefer such trivial charges, and thus trifle with the valuable time of the Court. He said that if every man, especially for a few weeks past, who has thus expressed his views of the present force, and the conduct of the several officers, were hauled into Court, some of the best citizens in the city would be defendants, and the Court, in order to accommodate the number of arrested parties, would have to be held in the Pavilion.

The City Board of Health met Saturday evening. After the regular proceedings of the Board had been disposed of, Dr. Hatch announced that complaints had been filed with him to the effect that large quantities of diseased meat, unfit for human food, was sold daily in the city.

Dr. Cluness said he had no doubt that such was the case. About a year ago he had occaof the murder. Raffety came along, and when the story was told him he manifested much surprise and said it was the first he had heard of it. He also remarked to Cameron that if they had done right they would have informed him and he could have arrested the murderer, Lentini.
